A Denver, Colorado, dispatch of June 1th says: Immigration is unprecedented since 1861. Large trains, mostly of farmers and laborers, arrive daily. The crops promise an extraordinary yield. Mining operations are unusually active and encouraging.

Gen. Butler, President of the Board of Managers, invites proposals for sites for national military asylums, by donation or sale. The premises must be situate in a loyal State, in a healthy location, and contain not less than two hundred acres of land.

The Memphis Argus wishes to God that the niggers were back in Africa, in hell, or any other seaport town, including Boston. Judging from Gen. Stoneman's report, the Argus' followers backed up their words with deeds during the recent negro massacre.

It is announced from Washington that the Democratic members of Congress have resolved to withdraw their "moral support" from Mr. Johnson unless he makes a positive recognition of it by a reconstruction of the Cabinet. Democratic moral support requires material compensation.

At Moscow the Countess Petrowna, a Polish lady of rank, wealth and beauty, has been arrested for having predicted some time ago that the life of the Emperor would be attempted on the 16th of April. The lady had hardly been committed to prison when she went mad.

We have advices from Brownsville, Texas, to the 28th of May. The Grand Jury of Cameron county had indicted ex-Major General F. S. Herron, United States army, for kidnapping and delivering to the Liberal General Cortinas a suspected Imperialist named [illegible], who was subsequently shot by Cortinas' order.

A disease much resembling the rinderpest has broken out among the cattle at Danbury, Conn. Several cattle have suddenly sickened and died within thirty six hours after they were attacked. Upon opening it was found that the brains and shoulders of the cattle were mortified, emitting a stench almost unable to be borne.

We learn from the Memphis Appeal that a difficulty occurred at the Gayoso House Friday evening between General Fisk, of the Bureau, and a gentleman named Ridgely, which resulted in a resort to fisticuffs, from which the General was about coming out second best, when three negro soldiers interfered and turned the scale in his favor."

A note from a Unionist of North Carolina states that the loyal men of his section are "in a wretched condition, controlled as completely by the rebel leaders now as during the rebellion. More than 170 Union men in one county alone are indicted by the rebel Grand Jury for alleged offenses, mostly committed against the rebellion. Nothing will save us except a disqualification of the leading rebels to vote and hold office."

L. P. Milligan, the Indiana Son of Liberty who was pardoned by President Johnson, was arrested at Indianapolis recently, taken before the United States Circuit Court, and held in bonds of $5,000 to answer, at the October term, a charge of treason. He was visiting his Democratic friends in that city, and was in the special care of the Democratic candidate for Attorney General, John R. Coffroth.

The Cleveland Leader takes strong ground against the Congressional action of Mr. Spaulding, member of Congress from that district. It avers that he has never uttered a single word in Congress in condemnation of the President's treachery to the Union party, while he has in express terms rebuked the Union men in Congress for their outspoken opposition to Mr. Johnson. The Leader, of course, is opposed to Mr. Spaulding's renomination.

At New York a deputation representing a large number of colored men, who had served in the late war, called at the headquarters, and offered to enlist in the Fenian army to fight for British liberty, and avenge the wrongs the blacks recently suffered in Jamaica from the British authorities. Colonel Roberts, who received the delegation, thanked them in behalf of the Irish people for their kind offer, and said he believed he should soon have need of their services. The Colonel also remarked that he considered blacks were almost too good to fight against English tyrants. The deputation then withdrew, and were loudly cheered when they left the building.

The following are descriptions of the present appearance of a number of English authoresses of the present day: "George Eliot" is quite large, finely-shaped, blonde, auburn haired, [illegible] eyes, beautiful teeth, and, altogether, a fine woman—but a good deal of her. Miss Braddon is in every way a contrast, with a "commony" look and a color which looks like rouge, but isn't. Miss Frances Power Cobbe is huge, looking as if she might weigh three hundred and fifty pounds, and often obliged to walk on crutches; and Miss Isa Craig, editor of the Argosy, though not pretty, yet is young, and has a pure, child-like expression, an eye full of delicate and refined feeling, and a gentle voice that every one likes to hear.

The Herald is never tired of surprising its readers. Having long been in the habit of inventing contemporaneous history for their amusement, it now tries its experienced hand on European history of the 16th and 17th centuries with startling results. Thus:

"Napoleon, who has stirred up this war for certain motives of his own, is playing the same game with Germany now that Richelieu played with Charles the Fifth. The Reformation inaugurated by Luther was political as well as religious. Richelieu secretly took part in the troubles which arose, and aided the Protestants in Germany, while he was putting them down in favor of the Catholics in France. Charles the Fifth, then Emperor of Germany and King of Spain, a sovereign who boasted that the sun never set upon his dominions, was constantly harrassed by attacks from all sides, now from a powerful rival and now from a confederation of German princes, until at the close of the thirty years war he was glad to abdicate and retire into a monastery."

If Napoleon's game is like the game that Richelieu played with Charles the Fifth it must be a very deep one. Charles the Fifth retired to a monastery in 1556, and died there in 1558. Richelieu was born 27 years after, 1585. The Thirty Years War, at the close of which, according to The Herald, Charles the Fifth abdicated, began in 1618, just sixty years after the Emperor had been buried. His part in it must have been very much like that which Andrew Jackson took in suppressing the late Rebellion.

A SHREWD ANSWER.—We do not recollect to have seen the following anecdote of Mr. Lincoln before. It is a good specimen of the peculiar incisiveness of his intellect. He was waited on by a committee of Republican Senators to urge upon him the absolute necessity of a concurrence on the part of every member of his Cabinet with the President in the principles and policy of his Administration. Mr. Lincoln withheld any expression of his own sentiments, but said there was one question that he wished each Senator to consider carefully and to answer to his own conscience, and that was this: "You urge," said he, "the importance of having each member of Cabinet agree with me, but are you not really the most anxious that I should have a Cabinet every member of which will agree with you?" [illegible] were prepared to answer this question, [illegible] them to come back and he would give them another interview. If agreement with him was what they really wanted, that was already secured. The committee did not return.

The Springfield (Ill.) Journal says:

A prominent general officer who has been stationed in the South since the war, and whose duties have been such as to bring him in contact with the people, gives it as his firm conviction that the North, through Mr. Johnson's course, has lost all it gained in the war, except a nominal abolition of slavery.

Bureau of Education Bill

The following is the Bureau of Education bill as called, that passed the House of Representatives on the 19th ult:

SECTION 1. That there shall be established at the City of Washington a Department of Education for the purpose of collecting such statistics and facts as shall show the condition and progress in the several States and Territories, and of diffusing such information respecting the organization and management of schools and school systems and methods of teaching as shall aid the people of the United States in the establishment and maintenance of efficient school systems, and otherwise promote the cause of education throughout the country.

SEC. 2. That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a Commissioner of Education, who shall be intrusted with the management of the Department herein established, and who shall receive a salary of $4,000 per annum, and who shall have authority to appoint one Chief Clerk of his Department, who shall receive a salary of $2,000 per annum, and one Clerk who shall receive a salary of $1,600 per annum, which said clerks shall be subject to appointing and removing power of the Commissioner of Education.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Education to present annually to Congress a report embodying the result of his investigations and labors, together with a statement of such facts and recommendations as will, in his judgment, subserve the purpose for which this Department is established. In the first report made by the Commissioner of Education under this act there shall be presented a statement of the several grants of land made by Congress to promote education, and the manner in which these several trusts have been managed, the amount of funds arising therefrom, and the annual proceeds of the same, as far as the same can be determined.

SEC. 4. That the Commissioner of Public Buildings is hereby authorized and directed to furnish proper offices for the use of the Department herein established.

FORT MONROE AND ANDERSONVILLE.—Jefferson Davis is charged by the Government of the United States with complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln, and the Government cannot decently parole him until it has withdrawn that charge. Should it be withdrawn, he would remain a prisoner under indictment for treason, which is also a capital crime. So long, however, as he is imprisoned upon whatever charge, humanity requires that he be well treated, and that there shall be no delay in his trial. There has, however, been a foolish attempt to excite sympathy for him and odium against the Government by depicting him as a martyr, a Bastile sufferer, a dignified and pathetic victim of a haughty and cruel Despotism. Yet there is no other prisoner in this or any other country, charged with a capital crime, who is so comfortably lodged and honorably treated as Jefferson Davis. He has a casemate properly furnished. He has a daily bill of fare such as no other prisoner in the world enjoys, and which would amply satisfy an honest man. He has the range of the ramparts upon which to breathe the ocean air, and he has books, newspapers, wife, and friends around him. He has, or had, a physician also, who apparently sat at his feet to catch the drops of wisdom that fell from his mouth—a physician who has prepared a book about the prisoner whom he calls "ex-President" and "distinguished captive."

Let us not forget that this man, for whose comfort sentries must tread softly, for whose delicate stomach the bill of fare must be daily changed, for whose gratification the recreations we have named are provided, is the same man who could see from his house in Richmond the island upon which Union prisoners were slowly starved and frozen, and who knew that thousands of his fellow men imprisoned at Andersonville were pitilessly tortured into idiocy and death. Not the least pang of their horrible bodily suffering would we have retorted upon Jefferson Davis; not one touch of retaliation should the American people allow to be visited upon him. But when they are asked to believe that he is tortured by the authority of their Government, it is wise for them to perceive the difference between the treatment he receives from the Government which he sought to destroy and that which he countenanced in the case of those who strove to defend it. Nor will those people forget that the same papers which furiously denounce the pretended cruelty of the Government toward him were silent over the awful tragedies of Andersonville and Belle Isle, or flatly denied them.—Harper's Weekly.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

It is stated that the Czar has ordered the release of the father of Kamissarow, the young man who saved the Imperial life, he having been transported to Siberia in 1855 for some political offense.

The mountains in Washington, Mass., are being explored by scientific men for the purpose of ascertaining the mineral wealth. Lead, iron and emery are supposed to abound there in great quantities.

A Denver, Colorado, dispatch of June 11th says: Immigration is unprecedented since 1861. Large trains, mostly of farmers and laborers, arrive daily. The crops promise an extraordinary yield. Mining operations are unusually active and encouraging.

Gen. Butler, President of the Board of Managers, invites proposals for sites for national military asylums, by donation or sale. The premises must be situate in a loyal State, in a healthy location, and contain no less than two hundred acres of land.

The Memphis Argus "wishes to God that the niggers were back in Africa, in hell, or any other seaport-town including Boston." Judging from Gen. Stoneman's report, the Argus followers backed up their words with deeds during the recent negro massacre.

It is announced from Washington that the Democratic members of Congress have resolved to withdraw their "moral support" from Mr. Johnson unless he makes a positive recognition of it by a reconstruction of the offices. Democratic moral support requires material compensation.

At Moscow, the Countess Potocka, a Polish lady of rank, wealth and beauty, has been arrested for having predicted, some time ago, that the life of Emperor would be attempted on the 10th of April. The lady had hardly been committed to prison when she went mad.

We have advices from Brownsville, Texas, to the 28th of May. The Grand Jury of Cameron county had indicted ex-Major General F. S. Herron, United States army, for kidnapping and delivering to the Liberal General Cortinas a suspected Imperialist named Rajon, who was subsequently shot by Cortinas' order.

A disease much resembling the rinderpest has broken out among the cattle at Danbury, Conn. Several cattle have suddenly sickened and died within thirty six hours after they were attacked. Upon opening it was found that the brains and shoulders of the cattle were mortified, emitting a stench almost unable to be borne.

We learn from the Memphis Appeal that a "difficulty occurred at the Gayoso House Friday evening, between General Fisk, of the Bureau, and a gentleman named Ridgely, which resulted in a resort to fisticuffs, from which the General was about coming out second best, when three negro soldiers interfered and turned the scale in his favor."

A note from a Unionist of North Carolina states that the loyal men of his section are "in a wretched condition, controlled as completely by the rebel leaders now as during the rebellion. More than 170 Union men in one county alone, are indicted by the rebel Grand Jury for alleged offenses, mostly committed against the rebellion. Nothing will save us except a disqualification of the leading rebels to vote and hold office."

L. P. Milligan, the Indiana Son of Liberty, who was pardoned by President Johnson, was arrested at Indianapolis recently, taken before the United States Circuit Court, and held in bonds of $5,000 to answer, at the October term, a charge of treason. He was visiting his Democratic friends in that city, and was in the special care of the Democratic candidate for Attorney General, John R. Coffroth.

The Cleveland Leader takes strong ground against the Congressional action of Mr. Spaulding, member of Congress from that district. It avers that he has never uttered a single word in Congress in condemnation of the President's treachery to the Union party, while he has in express terms, rebuked the Union men in Congress for their outspoken opposition to Mr. Johnson. The Leader, of course, is opposed to Mr. Spaulding's renomination.

At New York a deputation representing a large number of colored men, who had served in the late war, called at the headquarters, and offered to enlist in the Fenian army, to fight for British liberty, and avenge the wrongs the blacks recently suffered in Jamaica from the British authorities. Colonel Roberts, who received the delegation, thanked them in behalf of the Irish people for their kind offer, and said he believed he should soon have need of their services. The Colonel also remarked that he considered blacks were almost too good to fight against English tyrants. The deputation then withdrew, and were loudly cheered when they left the building.

The following are descriptions of the present appearance of a number of English authoresses of the present day: "George Eliot" is quite large, finely shaped, blonde, auburn haired, smiling eyes, beautiful teeth, and, altogether, a fine woman—but a good deal of her; Miss Braddon is in every way a contrast, with a "commony" look, and a color which looks like rouge, but isn't; Miss Frances Power Cobbe is huge, looking as if she might weigh three hundred and fifty pounds, and often obliged to walk on crutches; and Miss Isa Craig, editor of the Argosy, though not pretty, yet is young, and has a pure, child like expression, an eye full of delicate and refined feeling, and a gentle voice that every one likes to hear.

The Herald is never tired of surprising its readers. Having long been in the habit of inventing cotemporaneous history for their amusement, it now tries its experienced hand on European history of the 16th and 17th centuries with startling results. Thus:

"Napoleon, who has stirred up this war for certain motives of his own, is playing the same game with Germany now that Richelieu played with Charles the Fifth. The Reformation inaugurated by Luther was political as well as religious. Richelieu secretly took part in the troubles which arose, and aided the Protestants in Germany, while he was putting them down in favor of the Catholics in France. Charles the Fifth, then Emperor of Germany and king of Spain, a sovereign who boasted that the sun never set upon his dominions, was constantly harrassed by attacks from all sides, now from a powerful rival and now from a confederation of German princes, until at the close of the thirty years' war he was glad to abdicate and retire into a monastery."

If Napoleon's game is like the game that Richelieu played with Charles the Fifth, it must be a very deep one. Charles the Fifth retired to a monastery in 1555, and died there in 1558. Richelieu was born 27 years after, 1585. The Thirty Years' War at the close of which, according to The Herald, Charles the Fifth abdicated, began in 1618, just sixty years after the Emperor had been buried. His part in it must have been very much like that which Andrew Jackson took in suppressing the late Rebellion.

A SHREWD ANSWER.—We do not recollect to have seen the following anecdote of Mr. Lincoln before. It is a good specimen of the peculiar incisiveness of his intellect. He was waited on by a committee of Republican Senators to urge upon him the absolute necessity of a concurrence on the part of every member of his Cabinet with the President in the principles and policy of his Administration. Mr. Lincoln withheld any expression of his own sentiments, but said there was one question that he wished each Senator to consider carefully and to answer to his own conscience, and that was this: "You urge," said he, "the importance of having each member of Cabinet agree with me, but are you not really the most anxious that I should have a Cabinet every member of which will agree with you?" When they were prepared to answer this question he begged them to come back and he would give them another interview. If agreement with him was what they really wanted that was already secured. The committee did not return.

The Springfield (Ill.) Journal says:

A prominent general officer who has been stationed in the South since the war and whose duties have been such as to bring him in contact with the people gives it as his firm conviction that the North, through Mr. Johnson's course, has lost all it gained in the war, except a nominal abolition of slavery.

Bureau of Education Bill

The following is the Bureau of Education bill, so called, that passed the House of Representatives on the 19th ult.

SECTION 1. That there shall be established at the City of Washington a Department of Education for the purpose of collecting such statistics and facts as shall show the condition and progress in the several States and Territories, and of diffusing such information respecting the organization and management of schools, the school system and methods of teaching as shall aid the people of the United States in the establishment and maintenance of different school system and otherwise promote the cause of education throughout the country.

SEC. 2. That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a Commissioner of Education, who shall be intrusted with the management of the Department herein established, and who shall receive a salary of $4,000 per annum, and who shall have authority to appoint one Chief Clerk of his Department, who shall receive a salary of $2,000 per annum, and one Clerk who shall receive a salary of $1,000 per annum, which said clerks shall be subject to appointing and removing power of the Commissioner of Education.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Education to present annually to Congress a report embodying the result of his investigations and labors, together with a statement of such facts and recommendations as will, in his judgment, subserve the purpose for which this Department is established. In the first report made by the Commissioner of Education, under this act, there shall be presented a statement of the several grants of land made by Congress to promote education and the manner in which these several trusts have been managed, the amount of funds arising therefrom, and the annual proceeds of the same as far as the same can be determined.

SEC. 4. That the Commissioner of Public Buildings is hereby authorized and directed to furnish proper offices for the use of the Department herein established.

FORT MONROE AND ANDERSONVILLE.—Jefferson Davis is charged by the Government of the United States with complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln, and the Government cannot decently parole him until it has withdrawn that charge. Should it be withdrawn he would remain a prisoner under indictment for treason, which is also a capital crime. So long, however, as he is prisoned upon whatever charge, humanity requires that he be well treated, and that there shall be no delay in his trial. There has, however, been a foolish attempt to excite sympathy for him, and odium against the Government by depicting him as a martyr, a Bastile sufferer, a dignified and pathetic victim of a haughty and cruel Despotism. Yet there is no other prisoner in this or any other country, charged with a capital crime, who is so comfortably lodged and honorably treated as Jefferson Davis. He has a casemate properly furnished. He has a daily bill of fare such as no other prisoner in the world enjoys, and which would amply satisfy an honest man. He has the range of the ramparts upon which to breathe the ocean air, and he has books, newspapers, wife, and friends around him. He has, or had, a physician also, who apparently sat at his feet to catch the drops of wisdom that fell from his mouth; a physician who has prepared a book about the prisoner whom he calls "ex President" and "distinguished captive."

Let us not forget that this man, for whose comfort sentries must tread softly, for whose delicate stomach the bill of fare must be daily changed, for whose gratification the recreations we have named are provided, is the same man who could see from his house in Richmond the island upon which Union prisoners were slowly starved and frozen, and who knew that thousands of his fellow men imprisoned at Andersonville were pitilessly tortured into idiocy and death. Not the least pang of their horrible bodily suffering would we have retorted upon Jefferson Davis; not one touch of retaliation should the American people allow to be visited upon him. But when they are asked to believe that he is tortured by the authority of their Government, it is wise for them to perceive the difference between the treatment he receives from the Government which he sought to destroy and that which he countenanced in the case of those who strove to defend it. Nor will those people forget that the same papers which furiously denounce the pretended cruelty of the Government toward him were silent over the awful tragedies of Andersonville and Belle Isle, or flatly denied them.—Harper's Weekly.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1866.

"My Policy" Flanked.

The late action of Congress declaring the State of Tennessee restored to her former relations with the Union and admitting her Senators and Representatives to seats in Congress, is very gratifying. Not only for the good results that will accrue to Tennessee from this action, but as a stroke of sound policy calculated to strengthen the Union party and turn back upon its assailants the absurd charge that that party is in favor of keeping the Southern States out of Congress indefinitely—the restoration of Tennessee is an event to be hailed with satisfaction by all who really desire the pacification of the country. The Tennessee members are loyal. The State has ratified the amendment proposed by the present Congress, thus performing the only condition precedent to complete restoration. Congress has asserted, and she has recognized the authority of the law-making power to provide for a renewal of the interrupted relations between the State and Federal Governments. The work of reconstruction is complete in Tennessee.

This action of Congress and of the authorities of Tennessee will work the happiest results for the country, but will be the utter ruin of "my policy." It may reasonably be expected that Arkansas will ratify the amendment soon and be restored on the same terms. The majority in Congress having shown their purpose to admit loyal members from the Southern States as fast as these States ratify the equitable amendment that has been proposed, the Union party will triumph in the fall elections throughout the North, Congress will adhere to the firm position it has taken, and the late rebellious States, conscious that they can come in under no other terms than those now offered, will adopt the amendment, elect Senators and Representatives who are free from the guilt of the rebellion, and take their old places under the Government on a full equality with the loyal members of the Union.

Thus after all the turmoil of angry debate, the work of Congress is quietly superseding the operations of "my policy." The assertion of the Senate that it rests with the law making power to decide whether the revolted States have governments which are not repugnant to the Government of the Union, and whether they are therefore qualified to harmoniously resume their functions under the Government of the United States, is a truth so clear and so consistent with reason, that it can easily be defended before the people. "My policy" denies this doctrine and assumes that these powers rest with the Executive. The ends to be attained by Congress are set forth in the proposed amendment, and the first fruits of the plan are realized in the restoration of Tennessee.

AN EXPRESSIVE PICTURE.—One of the most expressive pictures we remember to have ever seen in Harper is that of the "Contrast of suffering—Andersonville and Fortress Monroe," in the issue of June 30. Whoever looks upon it without feeling his blood boil with indignation at the cruelties practiced upon our unfortunate soldiers, is fit only to be ranked in the world's estimation, with the fiends whose hellish work the picture portrays. The upper half of the picture shows a stockade along which are posted sentinels. One of those has just discharged his musket at an almost naked prisoner, who, impelled by gnawing hunger, had crawled beyond the allotted limits, for an already well picked bone. Lying near him is the horribly emaciated dead body of another prisoner. A poor victim of starvation, nakedness and despair sits upon a little mound, with his face sunk in his scrawny hands, and one foot with drawn toes, placed on top of the other in the vain attempt to impart a little warmth to both. Fleshless and bloodless now, all the warmth of that bounding, hopeful life with which he sprang to his country's standard a few months before, will soon be frozen out, and he, too, will lie prone upon that inhospitable ground, a ghastly victim of treason's inhumanity. Just beyond him lies a comrade, half housed in one of the little caves dug for shelter and warmth; but he is dead, and the cart which is just going out so overloaded with dead bodies that their feet and arms hang over the sideboards, will return and convey him away to a nameless tomb with the heaps and heaps of nameless ones who have been carted out before. In the back-ground several skeleton frames are standing or moving about, ghastly shadows, with staring eyes, unkempt and bristling hair, and decked out with pendent, fluttering rags. The spirit of the picture—its outline and detail—is gaunt Famine, attended by Despair and Death.

The other, the contrasting, half of the picture, represents a scene at Fortress Monroe. In the foreground is Jeff. Davis seated in a richly cushioned arm chair; an uniformed surgeon is feeling his pulse; his wife has her tender, cooling hand on his brow; a chaplain and an officer stand behind him having evidently called to administer the consolations of religion and friendship; a soldier in front plies two fans; another holds a spittoon; still another is bringing in a tray loaded with refreshments; a linnet sings from a cage above him, and all about lie books and papers for his entertainment. A little in the background is a sentinel walking on tip-toe so as not to jar the delicate nerves of the distinguished prisoner. Just back of the sentinel is the entrance, over which is placed a huge placard containing this inscription: "All persons passing this way must put on slippers, in order not to disturb our guest." Another placard has this: "Please walk on the matting." On the floor lies a printed bill of fare, enumerating the various edibles by which "our guest" daily tempts his sated appetite: "Veal cutlets, poached eggs, beef-steaks, chickens, oysters, mutton, coffee," etc., etc. It is a picture of very comfortable invalidism, to say the least.

Underneath the whole design is this: "Treason must be made odious."

The Nevada Gazette, which politically is neither fish, fowl nor flesh, claims Mallory, Congressman elect from Oregon as for A. Johnson. We are not disposed to bandy words with the Gazette and will call on the Oregonian to give the member's status.—Marysville (Cal.) Appeal.

The Nevada Gazette "needn't bother." Mr. Mallory is not "for A. Johnson." He made the canvass which resulted in his election, on the principles that A. Johnson advocated before he apostatized, on the doctrine that it is the province of Congress to supervise the work of reconstruction, on the proposition that the Civil Rights law was just, expedient and necessary, and on the principle that traitors who have served the rebellion must be forever kept out of Congress. Furthermore, he is in favor of the new amendment to the Constitution, which A. Johnson opposes. Mr. Mallory was not elected to support "my policy," but to represent the loyal people of Oregon.

BEADLE'S MONTHLY.—The July number of this Magazine is before us. The excellence of preceding numbers is well sustained. A paper on Utah—the second of Mr. A. D. Richardson's valuable papers on the new Territories of the West—is published in the Magazine for July. The contents of this periodical are entirely original—many of the foremost names in American literature being numbered among its contributors. It has already attained a deservedly high rank among American magazines.

GONE TO THE WALL.—McClellan, the Chickahominy strategist, was lately reported as saying, "In case of a war between Prussia and Austria, Prussia must go the wall." It is turning out that Prussia is going to Austria's wall—and likely to climb over it.

STATE ITEMS.

We noticed on the wharf yesterday a lot of [illegible] signed to Sir James Douglass, Victoria. Sir James it seems, has a sweet tooth.

Mr. McCully, President of the P. T. Co., informs us that the amount of freights on the Upper Willamette has fallen off less this year than formerly, during the summer months.

We received calls yesterday from Mr. McPherson of the Albany Journal and Mr. Carter of the Corvallis Gazette. The latter does not contemplate removing his paper to Yaquina Bay.

From the minutes of the Willamette Baptist Association, we learn that during the last year, the various churches have received by baptism, thirteen members, by letter, thirteen, by relation, five. Dismissed by letter, three, excluded, two, died, one. Total present number of members, two hundred and twenty-one.

A man named Smith Fullerton, arrested here on the 20th on a warrant issued by a justice of the peace of Grant county, on a charge of forgery, was taken before Judge Shattuck yesterday, on a writ of habeas corpus. He was remanded to jail and will be started this morning in charge of an officer, to Canyon City for trial. The Grant county warrant upon which the prisoner was arrested was endorsed by a justice of the peace of Multnomah county, and the point raised was whether the arrest and detention were legal.

FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The following items are from a correspondent at Olympia, July 14th:

A party of miners left Lewis county a few days ago to prospect for gold on the head waters of the Cowlitz.

An exciting dog trial came off in Olympia last Saturday and Monday in justices' court—Howard suing Chad for killing a dog valued at twenty-five dollars. Garfielde for plaintiff and Clark and McFadden for defendant. Verdict for defendant; case to be appealed to the District Court.

The Pixley family of juveniles have been giving concerts in Olympia the past week. They intend becoming residents of that place.

The new steamer Josie McNear, for Puget Sound, arrived at Olympia on Sunday last from San Francisco. The proprietors are busy repairing her. She will take the place of the Anderson in the mail line between Olympia and Victoria next week.

Gen. Halleck and suite passed through Olympia Wednesday evening going North taking the steamer Diana immediately upon arriving at that place.

FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

The funeral of her Royal Highness was to take place on the last week in June.

Messrs. Burlingame and Valkenburg visited the Legislative Assembly and were highly complimented by the members. They were to proceed shortly to the Oriental Kingdom.

The American bark Swallow arrived from San Francisco, June 18th after a thirteen days' passage. She had on board the United States Ministers to China, Japan, and Hawaiian Islands.

Firewood is said to be scarce in Honolulu. Vessels have gone to South Kona to bring back cargoes of the ohia, said to be an excellent fire-wood.

MCCLELLAN'S CAMPAIGN ON THE PENINSULA.—A New Orleans paper in a sketch of "Fenner's (rebel) Battery," gives the following account of the operations on the Peninsula in the beginning of McClellan's campaign against Richmond:

They (Fenner's Battery) were under marching orders for Manassas, when the tidings of the battle of Big Bethel changed their destination and sent them to the Peninsula. They there participated in all the movements of the active and magnificent campaign of Magruder. The matchless strategy of this campaign has never been appreciated. By celerity and frequency of movement, Magruder, with a handful of men, for a whole year kept his antagonist under the idea that he had an overwhelming force, and not only rigidly enclosed him within his fortifications at Newport News, but frequently threatened his very battlements with assault. When finally, McClellan commenced his Peninsula march on Richmond, and advanced from Fortress Monroe with 125,000 men, Magruder achieved the climax of his strategy by the boldest movement of the war. Johnston, with the Army of the Potomac, was still north of Richmond. The delay of McClellan was an imperative necessity. Excepting the slight obstacle of Magruder, with about 6,000 men, the road to the capital was perfectly open to McClellan. Under these circumstances, the Confederate General, with a superb rashness, threw out his whole small force as skirmishers along a line of nine or ten miles across the Peninsula. McClellan, finding a show of force at every point of so long a line, at once concluded that he had a formidable opponent, halted his advancing columns, and commenced making elaborate preparations for a general engagement. Skirmishing commenced along the entire line, which continued for several days, accompanied by several partial assaults, which were successfully repulsed. Time was given Johnston to bring up his army, and Richmond was saved.

TO MEAN MEN.—If any man who stood by the flag during the war feels a mean inclination to slide over now into the embrace of the enemies of the country upon a hypocritical platform of immediate and unconditional restoration, let him reflect that the party which contains the rebels and Copperheads will necessarily be controlled by them. No renegade Union man could, if he would, be received on equal terms into any such party. The consistent enemies of the country hate the men who humiliated them, but they respect those who remain true to principles. Does any dish-water Unionist think that he can secure the confidence and affection of a Copperhead or a rebel by adding to his Union record of four years the meanness of treachery to his own party? Was Judas esteemed by the men who paid him the pieces of silver? When opposed by a sense of his guilt he went to them to return what he said was "the price of innocent blood;" their response was: "What is that to us; look thou to that." No Union man who sneaks into Copperhead company now, can secure any stock in their concern. He can play the flunkey and lacquey, but he will be hated worse, as a deserter from our ranks, than while he was recognized as an opponent. This is common sense, as is proven by every apostacy, from that of Judas to that of—well, say Cowan, of Pennsylvania.—S. F. Tribune.

The Tribune publishes in full a set of lengthy resolutions adopted by a Convention of Mississippi journalists, and then proceeds to strip them of their verbiage and give them plain meaning, as follows:

Resolved, That having done our very best to repudiate the Federal Constitution and break up the Union, and having been threshed into unqualified submission to both, we hereby proclaim that we, and those who sympathised with us in our rebellion, and now seek to save us from its consequences, are the only genuine Unionists, while those who knocked the conceit out of us are enemies of the Constitution.

Resolved, That, since our conquerors abolished slavery, and would not let us up till we agreed to it, we sadly admit that the negroes are free; but we will keep them as nearly in their former servile condition as we can.

THE MEMPHIS MASSACRE.—Hon. John M. Broomall, of this State, and one of the members of the special committee appointed by the House to investigate the cause of the Memphis massacre, returned to Washington on Monday, in advance of his colleagues. He states that while no distinct proof of the wounding or killing of any one white man by negroes was made, clear evidence of the killing of at least thirty negroes by the whites was produced. Eight rapes were proved under circumstances of nameless horror, ending with the burning of the houses in which the violence occurred. This was the work of infuriated white ruffians alone. The origin of the massacre is, as stated by Gen. Stoneman, to have been an emeute between a few colored soldiers and the police. The report of the committee will be presented soon after Mr. Washburne and the other members of the committee have returned to Washington.—Pittsburg Dispatch, June 23d.

In a notice of Thurlow W. Brown, formerly editor of the Cayuga Chief, the Oswego Advertiser states that Mr Brown was the author of the beautiful piece entitled "The Inquiry," which commences:

"Tell me ye winged winds which round my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot where mortals weep no more?"

This beautiful poem has been attributed to Charles Mackay, and in all of our popular school books is credited to him. So popular is it that it goes the rounds of the papers every now and then to the credit of the English poet. It was set to music by the "Baker Family," who found it floating around anonymously, and for the sake of effect affixed Mackay's name to it.

THE CHIVALRY.—A Beaufort (South Carolina) correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin tells the following story of the people of that section: "Many of the negroes are quite prosperous, and it is no uncommon thing for the children to come back and beg for their former slaves. We visited one plantation where we were told that the former owner obtained one hundred dollars in small sums from his people, and another where the whole rebel family had returned and quartered themselves on their former cook, who supported them for three months, and then, much to the indignation of the haughty Southerners, told them she could do so no longer."

THE FENIANS INDORSE CONGRESS.—At a rousing meeting of the friends of Ireland, held in Milwaukee, June 13th, resolutions were unanimously adopted indorsing Congress, denouncing the President and guaranteeing to stand by the Republican Congress for the future.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JULY 21.

Congressional—The Restoration of Tennessee.

WASHINGTON, July 21. The Senate, after some debate, passed the resolution admitting Tennessee, amended so as to read as follows:

WHEREAS, In the year 1861, the government of the State of Tennessee was seized upon and taken possession of by persons in hostility to the United States, and the inhabitants of said State in pursuance of an act of Congress, were declared to be in a state of insurrection against the United States; and

WHEREAS, said State government can only be restored to its former relation to the Union by the consent of the law making power of the United States; and

WHEREAS, the people of the United States in that State, did, on the 22d of February 1865, by a large popular vote, adopt and ratify a constitution and government republican in form and not in conflict with the Constitution and laws of the United States, whereby slavery is abolished and the ordinance and laws of secession and the debts contracted under the same were declared void; and

WHEREAS, the State government has ratified the amendment to the Constitution of the United States abolishing slavery and also the amendment proposed by the thirty-ninth Congress; and

WHEREAS, the body of the people of Tennessee have by a proper spirit of obedience shown to the satisfaction of Congress the return of said State to its allegiance, therefore be it

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the State of Tennessee shall be restored to her former proper, practical relation to the Union and be again entitled to be represented in Congress.

Buckalew, of Pennsylvania, Brown, of Missouri, McDougall, of California, and Sumner, alone, voted in the negative. The resolution now returns to the House, and will be concurred in immediately.

The House heard Rousseau, of Kentucky, in explanation of his conduct, after which the speaker pronounced the reprimand, and Rousseau tendered his resignation.

Foreign News.

VIENNA, July 10.—The Emperor of Austria has issued a manifesto, in which he avows the heavy misfortunes which have befallen his Army of the North, moved to its inmost core his heart, but the reliance he had placed upon the devotion of his people, the courage of his army, upon God and his good and sacred rights, he had not wavered a single instant. He had addressed himself to the Emperor of the French, requesting his good offices for bringing about an armistice with Italy. Not merely had the Emperor responded to his demand, but had offered to mediate with Prussia for a suspension of hostilities and for opening negotiations for peace. This offer was accepted, and he announces himself prepared to make peace upon honorable conditions to prevent the bloodshed and ravages of war, but he would not make a peace by which Austria's position as a great power would be shaken. Sooner than this he would carry on war to the utmost extremity.

All available troops are being concentrated, and gaps in the ranks are filled by conscription. Volunteers are called to arms by the newly awakened spirit of patriotism. Austria has been severely visited by misfortune, but she is not humiliated nor bowed down.

The Paris Presse says the following are the terms proposed to the representatives of the belligerents: The German Confederation to be dissolved and another to be established, of which neither Prussia nor Austria shall form a part. No cessions to be demanded of Austria. The abandonment by the latter of her claims in the Duchies and in place of the war indemnity at first demanded by Prussia, the incorporation of Schleswig-Holstein, Hesse, Cassel, Hesse Darmstadt and Brunswick with Prussia. The population of the Prussian kingdom would thereby be raised to 25,000,000; the Rhine to constitute the western frontier of Prussia, and the Provinces between the Rhine and Moselle to serve as an indemnity to the sovereigns dispossessed by war, an exchange of territory to take place between Baden and Bavaria, which will give the former nearly the whole of the Rhenish Palatinate; Saxony, Hanover and the Duchies of Saxony to conclude military conventions with Prussia; the inhabitants of Landau to choose whether they shall belong to France or Baden, and the population of the valley of the Saar to choose between French or Rhenish sovereigns.

La France says the Prussian conditions are the exclusion of Austria from the Germanic Confederacy; the exclusive command of the military and naval forces of the Confederation by Prussia, as well as the diplomatic representation of Germany abroad and the annexation to Prussia of the Duchies as a part of the territory already occupied. La France also says that the Emperor Napoleon at once sent these conditions to St. Petersburg and London as rising questions of European interest which can only be settled by a Congress of the great powers.

FROM THE NORTH.

Great Excitement at Bellingham Bay.

SEHOME, July 23.—Since July 8th, the Bellingham Bay coal mine has been an object of excitement owing to a miners' strike, on account of the inefficiency of the underground manager, named Wm. Smith.

Yesterday morning a crowd of about fifty well armed men drew up to the hotel and kidnapped two men lately arrived from Washoe, who were still working in the mine after being warned by the miners. They escorted them out on the Fort Hope trail, but well supplied them with money and provisions. No further trouble occurred, but we fear that unless a speedy settlement is made, it may end seriously. We believe, and all are of one mind, their cause is just.

The Telegraph.—Scarcely any discovery since the Christian era has been of such wonderful use to mankind as the electric telegraph. Portland, with all its advantages, and its position as the commercial metropolis of the upper Pacific coast, would be comparatively of little account without the telegraph. The expense of placing our city in communication with all parts of the civilized world has been great, but we think the liberality of all classes of the community appreciate the fact. By glancing at the columns of the Daily Oregonian every morning an idea of an outlay of a single establishment for the use of the electric wire, can be gained. We propose, in connection with this subject, to condense a few items of interest. Telegraph is derived from two Greek words meaning "afar" and "to write." It properly includes nearly all methods of signaling. The ancient method was to build fires upon commanding points which were visible at a great distance by night, and the smoke by day. Roman Generals could spell words by means of fires of different substances. Different signals were used by the Indians to notify each other of the approach of Fremont when he came to this coast. They were used for some years in San Francisco, before the wire was laid, to notify the inhabitants of an approaching vessel, and of what class it belonged to. The electric telegraph was thought of as long ago as 1729. Benjamin Franklin, by means of the electric shock, communicated fire to alcohol across the Schuylkill river in 1748; he also identified lightning with electricity about the same time. This agent was produced by friction, and its practical application was suggested by Dr. Watson of London, in 1747, and by Salva at Madrid 1797. It was found that the voltaic pile, discovered in 1800, furnished a more constant current, and would therefore be much more practical in transmitting intelligence. From the year 1800 to 1837, experiments were made by scientific men in all parts of the world to apply this wonderful agent for the use and benefit of man. Several ingenious contrivances, exciting the admiration of the learned, were invented, but it remained for an American to bring it to perfect practicability. We refer to Prof. S. F. B. Morse, who, in 1837, first publicly exhibited his telegraphic apparatus at University of New York. In October, 1837, Prof. Morse filed a caveat in the Patent office to secure his invention. In 1840 he obtained his patent. The electric telegraph was first brought into practical use in 1844, between Washington and Baltimore. The combination of dots and lines to represent the letters of the alphabet, was conceived by Prof. Morse in 1832, to which plan he steadily adhered to until he brought it to perfection. Printing machines for telegraphic purposes were afterwards invented, and an application for a patent by Royal E. House, of Vermont, in 1846, was granted in 1848. This instrument is worked by keys arranged similar to a piano forte key board. Not long since we saw it in operation between San Francisco and Sacramento, but owing to its complication and liability to get out of order, the company went back to the Morse instrument. Although it is a wonderful invention it is doubtful if for many years it will succeed the Morse. In 1856 David E. Hughes of Kentucky, also obtained a patent for a printing telegraph machine. In 1858 G. M. Phelps of Troy, New York, perfected an instrument, the most valuable portions of the House and Hughes patent, and has been used with great success on the lines formerly using those inventions. In the extent of telegraphic lines the United States has exceeded every other country. There were over 50,000 miles in operation in 1860. Since that time a line has been completed from St. Louis to San Francisco, and from thence to this city. In Great Britain and Ireland it is estimated that there are 40,000 miles of telegraph; in Germany, 35,000; in France, 26,000; in Russia, 12,000; in Italy, 8,600; in Switzerland, 2,000, in Denmark and Sweden, 2,000, in Turkey and Greece, 500. The Russians have been engaged for some years in extending a very important line from Moscow to the Pacific, thus connecting eastern Asia with the countries of Europe and finally by Behring's straits with the American continent. If this line is carried across the Aleutian Islands, the longest cable, it is thought will not exceed 200 miles. The intervening space from Russian America to Oregon is about 1,700 miles. It is believed the cost of making this connection will not be greater than that of laying the Atlantic cable in 1858. We would like, if compatible with space, to give some statistical information of cables in different parts of the world. Most of our readers are, no doubt, familiar with the attempts to lay one across the Atlantic, the experiments and cost, and of the final failure of both. A third trial will soon be made which it is fully believed will be successful. The simple statement of facts connected with the history of the electric telegraph would fill a large volume. Seven or eight standard works upon this great invention have been published on both continents, to which, of course, the student would look for complete information. These fragments are all we can furnish our readers for the present.

Circuit Court.—Shattuck J. Chas. M'Glinn vs. Saml. M. Stout. Decree in favor of plaintiff, as he is the owner in fee simple, of lot 8 in block 157. Judgment against defendant for costs. A. Cohn & Co. vs. Knapp, Burrell & Co. Demurrer to answer sustained as to allegations in answer, relative to damages done defendants in moving to and from their premises, and overruled as to the allegations of the answer relative to the right of possession to the property described in the complaint set up by virtue of the written agreement pleaded by defendants. Judgment against plaintiffs for costs. In the matter of the application of Smith Fillmore for a writ of habeas corpus, the application being heard the defendant was remanded to the custody of the Sheriff.

Pacific Coast Coal Oil.—Yesterday Mr. Jackson, at the store of Hayward, Coleman & Co., showed us some beautiful coal oil from the Hayward Petroleum Co., located at San Buenaventura, on the coast between Monterey and Los Angeles. The crude oil flows out of the mountain side and is conducted by means of iron pipes to a reservoir, is then put in casks and sent to the refinery in San Francisco where it undergoes purification for the market. The specimen we saw yesterday is almost as clear as pure water, and the flame fully equal to that of gas. The retail price is fixed at $1 per gallon while Eastern oil is worth $1 25. As this is the first petroleum seen in this city, or produced on the coast, we shall look with interest for further developments in regard to the discovery of new veins, etc.

The New Court House.—The new Court House is rapidly approaching completion. The offices designed for the Sheriff and Clerk will be occupied on Monday next. The original contract price of this building was $65,000, but the cost when the extra work since ordered—together with the grading of the lot, the construction of an iron fence, and the sewer—are completed, will not be far from $80,000. The finish of the house is of a very superior order, and there is probably no finer public building on the Pacific coast.

Convention of Good Templars.—An adjourned session of the convention of Good Templars, will be held at their Hall in this city on Thursday evening. The object of the convention is to initiate measures for the purchase of a lot and the erection of a Hall. We are authorized to state that all persons—whether members or not—interested in the cause of Temperance, are invited to attend. The good work which this order has done, and is still doing, should commend it to the hearty support of all the friends of morality.

Military.—Maj. Gen. Halleck and Maj. Gen. Steele returned last night from their trip to Puget Sound, and vicinity. They report every thing in good condition, and selected sites for permanent military works. Gen. Halleck and Staff, (except two who went on the Orizaba last night,) leave on the stage this morning, overland, for California, stopping at Fort Jones and other intermediate military points. General Steele and Staff return to Vancouver to-day after an absence of nearly two months.

Man Overboard.—Yesterday morning between three and four o'clock, a cry was heard in the vicinity of the Fidelitor, which aroused Mr. Hildebrandt of the Franklin House. He, in company with a Mr. Gray, started for the river where they found a man struggling for life in the water. By a good deal of exertion they succeeded in saving him. His name is said to be Allman, and he has but lately arrived here from Victoria to attend a lawsuit. No cause is assigned for the accident.

Notice to Tax Payers.—In another column is a notice from United States Collector Crawford, that unless taxes now due are paid within ten days, or before the 3d of August, collection will be made by distraint, ten per cent. added with penalty and costs. "A word to the wise, etc.

Nearly Fatal.—A man went into a cistern yesterday to clean it out. Just as he reached the bottom he was seized with a fit. A compositor engaged in this office, who happened to be near, went down after him. He found him insensible, and did not revive until brought out into the open air. It was a lucky escape.

Recorder's Court.—Judge Hoffman having recovered somewhat from his late illness, will open this court for the transaction of business this morning. There are but few cases on the docket and these can be disposed of, probably, at one sitting of the Court.

New Goods.—By reference to another column, it will be seen that Silver & Fain are opening out with an extensive assortment of dry-goods. These gentlemen are in the fire proof building on First street between Taylor and Yamhill.

North Portland Steam Saw Mill.—A visit to this mill, yesterday, satisfied us that it is permanently "ripping away," and prepared to fill all orders with "neatness and dispatch."

Treasure Drift.—The following amount of treasure was shipped by the Orizaba last night: Wells, Fargo & Co., $140,000, Ladd & Tilton, [illegible] Goldsmith Bros., $20,000.

Sewer Contract.—The contract for the construction of sewer from west side of First street to the new Court House, on block No. 54, has been awarded to John H. Perry & Co.

Sailing of the Orizaba.—The steamship Orizaba, Capt. Metzger, left this port for San Francisco, last night, with 145 passengers and a fair amount of freight.

The Sacramento Union of the 17th inst., has this paragraph:

Secretary Welles has found time to suspend the occupation of cultivating his beard and writes a letter to Senator Doolittle, the President's man Friday, approving, of course, the call for the Philadelphia Convention. The question naturally arises what right has Senator Doolittle, who notoriously misrepresents the will of his constituents, to institute inquiries of members of the Cabinet as to their views of the partisan policy of his master, the President. Some of them had a fine opportunity to ventilate his recreancy to principle.

A proposition is stated to be pending before the Postmaster-General, which, if adopted, will decrease materially the rates of book postage now charged between this country and Great Britain. By this proposition each country is to levy upon books transmitted to the other only its own rates of domestic postage on books.

Personal Items.

D. O. McCarthy has been selected by the American Flag Publishing Company to resume editorial control of the paper, with such assistants as he may desire.

John Minor Botts delivered the Fourth of July oration at Baltimore.

It is stated that George Peabody intends to make a splendid donation to some great charity in the United States.

General Cass was estimated to be worth from four to five millions.

James Eagan, an old resident of South Carolina, who was discharged from the New York State prison on a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Nelson, of the United States Supreme Court, has been re-arrested by the military authorities, and is now in confinement at Columbia.

Belle Boyd recently made her debut at Manchester, England, in the Lady of Lyons, and failed.

It is announced that Julia Dean Hayne will be the leading woman at one of the St. Louis theatres next season.

Major General Sherman has been paying Canada a visit, his object being a tour of inspection, military and otherwise, around the upper lakes.

General Santa Anna is negotiating for the equestrian portrait of General Scott, painted by Troyes, by resolution of the Senate of Virginia.

Prince Alfred has taken his seat in the English House of Lords as the Duke of Edinburg. In the nursery he led the "opposition."

The following ex-officers of the California Volunteers were in the expedition lately sailing from San Francisco for Gen. Corona's headquarters, Lower California: Capt. Urmy, Lieut. Galway, Lieut. A. Bellon, Lieut. Elliott, Capt. Barth, Capt. Hahn, Sergeant-Majors Hahn, Roberts and Gerny.

One of the objects of Gen. Grant's visit to St. Louis was to dispossess a tenant occupying some property belonging to the General, and who refused to give it up, being determined to "fight it out on that line all summer."

Gen. Grant had formal invitations to "celebrate" at 96 different places on the last Fourth.

Gen. Longstreet was recently serenaded in New Orleans. He said he had no platform on which to address his hearers. If he reproached Mr. Johnson, he was called a traitor; if he went towards the Radicals, he was called a rebel; therefore he must be content to remain on the fence.

On one little street in Galena, Illinois, and within the space of four blocks, were at one time the business places of six private citizens now known as Lieut. Gen. Grant, Major Gen. John E. Smith, Maj. Gen. J. A. Rawlins, Maj. Gen. A. L. Chetlain, Brig. Gen. J. A. Maltby and Brig. Gen. Dixon.

The English Admiral Denman, who refused to co-operate with Commodore Rodgers of the American Navy in preventing the bombardment of Valparaiso by the Spanish, has been removed.

A letter from St. Petersburg says that the Czar is in such fear of his life since the discovery of the conspiracy of which Korodozoff was a member, that he has now shut himself up in the fortress of Cronstadt.

The Mobile Times has a report of the death in Mexico of Gen. J. B. Slaughter, who commanded in Mobile at one time during the rebel rule. The same journal reports that Col. Olodski, formerly of the United States Ordnance Department, and afterwards chief of the same branch of service under Gens. Bragg and Beauregard, is now, at an advanced period of life, working as an engineer in Mexico at $40 a month, thus barely able to support life. Col. Olodski is a Pole by birth, and having taken an active part in the revolution of 1831, had to escape from Poland into France, whence he left for the United States, where he entered the army in the humble capacity of Ordnance Sergeant.

New Senators.—The New York Tribune of the 23d of June, gives a list of the Senators whose terms will expire with the present Congress, which we append:

Foster of Connecticut, Trumbull of Illinois, McDougal of California, Harris of New York, Lane of Indiana, Pomeroy of Kansas, Kirkwood of Iowa, Davis of Kentucky, Cresswell of Maryland, Brown of Missouri, Clark of New Hampshire, Nye of Nevada, Sherman of Ohio, Cowan of Pennsylvania, Howe of Wisconsin, and Nesmith of Oregon, finish their terms on the 4th of March, 1867. General O. S. Ferry has been elected to succeed Foster. Senator Trumbull will doubtless be re-elected, even should he have such formidable competitors in caucus as General Logan and Governor Oglesby. Nye and Howe have fair chances of continuing for still another term. Governor Bramlette is likely to take the place of Garrett Davis, though Mallory and Powell are his rivals. Senator Lane of Indiana declines a re-election, and Speaker Colfax and Julian are named for the succession. Hickman, Kelly, Ketchum, Wilmot and Cameron are named for Cowan's seat in the Senate; the choice is likely to rest on a new man and not one of the old politicians. Governor Carney is anxious to succeed Pomeroy, and General Blair will contest the Senatorship with Gratz Brown. Cornelius Cole, a member of the House, will take the place of Senator McDougall, Secretary Harlan that of Kirkwood, and Representative Patterson the seat of Daniel Clark. Samuel W. Patterson, the Senator elect from New Hampshire, was formerly Professor of Mathematics in Dartmouth College, and still holds, it is said, the appointment of Professor of Astronomy.

The Ridiculous Inconsistency of "My Policy."—The San Francisco Tribune (which now radical print drops many solid chunks of sense) lays bare the inconsistency of "my policy" in the following:

If a State must be permitted to resume its functions in the Union before it can ratify a Constitutional amendment, as some pretend, how could the President conscientiously proclaim the adoption of the amendment abolishing slavery, upon the ratifications by States whose functions he declared to be suspended? He said then that the rebel States could not be restored until they ratified. Now he says that they have no power to ratify until they are restored. In this connection it might also be suggested that in the original formation of the present Union, no State was in the Union until after adopting or ratifying the Constitution. It was that act which made each State a part of the new nation.

Old Advice from a New Quarter.—The London Cosmopolitan, which is another name for the Index, recently revived, is very much tried with President Johnson, for not following the advice of the New York News and the Chicago Times, and compelling Congress, by physical force, to give seats to Southern delegations. "How long," "it asks impatiently, "must this warfare continue? How long must the President fight "against such fearful odds? Unless he has the "nerve to end the fight by a coup d'etat, he has "before him eighteen months of daily warfare." This coup d'etat once made the Cosmopolitan is of "the opinion that "the conservative battle in "America" will be won. Or, in other words, the Lord Campbells, Wharncliffs and Sir Beresford Hopes, who supported the Index, will hope to recover something on their worthless cotton loan, through a "restored" Congress.

More Treason Trials.—The United States Court in Alabama has indicted Judge G. W. Jones, Colonel Coltart, Alfred H. Moses, and A. J. Requier, for conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States, and seize the property of the same. At the outbreak of the rebellion Jones was Judge; Requier, District Attorney; Moses, Clark, and Coltart, Marshal of the United States District Court; and they afterward accepted those positions "in the Confederate States District Court."

Moses had already been pardoned by President Johnson. Judge Jones' bail was put at $15,000. He plead "not guilty" to the charge contained in the indictment. None of the other parties have as yet been arrested.

The Nerve of the Pocket is sometimes as sensitive as the nerve of the tooth. The universal demand for the fragrant Sozodont, in preference to all other dentifrices, is swamping all tooth powders and tooth washes of the experimental class of Dentists. Hence they denounce it.

A Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat requires immediate attention, as neglect oftentimes results in some incurable Lung Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are a simple remedy, and will almost invariably give immediate relief.

BEAUTY AND WORTH.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 89 First Street, are producing PICTURES which for BEAUTY and WORTH are not excelled any where. Letters are received from all quarters ordering extra copies from negatives taken only a short time ago. "Let your light so shine," etc., is a motto that will apply to the above well-known GALLERY.

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.—The stomach is the fountain-head of scores of diseases which infest the human system. Indigestion, bad enough, per se, generates diarrhœa, dysentery, faintness, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, general debility, &c. Get rid of it, then, at once, by going through a course of

DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS,

A palatable and refreshing preparation, which as surely relieves all complaints of the stomach and its dependencies, as the sunshine melts the snow. A course of the medicine may not perhaps be necessary. One bottle frequently accomplishes a complete cure. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supercede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

G. VENARD,

CHARTRES COFFEE!

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER, NOS 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

READ AND REFLECT.

Make sure of Health. "But how?" you ask;
We answer, 'tis an easy task,
Strengthen the Stomach, and sustain
The Nerves, the servants of the brain.
The Liver keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the inner man,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"Hostetter's Bitters," we reply,
Is Health's supreme protection—try!

As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-taint the heavy air.
Drink not unmixed the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature you must assist—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is threatened evil to prevent;
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for note
They are the SUREST ANTIDOTE.

To set at defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work-rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be fore-armed with

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and depress the mind;
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make life a constant martyrdom;
Colics and dysenteric pains,
'Neath which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
Ne'er conquered yet by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhoea that cannot be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration, mental gloom—
Heralds of madness or the tomb;
For these—though mineral nostrums fail—
Means of Relief at least we hail,
Hostetter's Bitters—medicine sure,
Not to prevent, alone, but cure.

In dyspepsia, fever and ague, bilious complaints, constitutional and nervous debility, constipation, sea-sickness, spasms, and in all complaints of Men or Women, proceeding from casual or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

To wanderers on sea or land,
From Polar shore to Tropic strand;
To households lone, in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities, too;
To soldiers in camp, fort and field,
Who need against disease a shield;
To miners, California bound,
And tillers of wet, marshy ground;
To feeble wives of fragile mold,
To young and middle-aged, and old;
To those in health, who would enjoy
Heaven's best gifts without alloy;
To all the strengthless, weak and pale,
Who droop, yet know not what they ail,
Hostetter's Bitters we present
As Health's most potent element.

If there is any value in public opinion, or any weight in medical testimony, the very best and safest Tonic, Corrective and Alterative now before the world is

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Sold by respectable druggists in all parts of the world.

The Death of Slavery

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

O Thou great Wrong, that, through the slow-paced years,
Didst hold thy millions fettered, and didst wield
The scourge that drove the laborer to the field,
And turn a stony gaze on human tears,
Thy cruel reign is o'er;
Thy bondmen crouch no more
In terror at the menace of thine eye;
For He who marks the bounds of guilty power,
Long-suffering, hath heard the captive's cry,
And touched his shackles at the appointed hour,
And lo! they fall, and he whose limbs they galled
Stands in his native manhood, disenthralled.

A shout of joy from the redeemed is sent;
Ten thousand hamlets swell the hymn of thanks;
Our rivers roll exulting, and their banks
Send up hosannas to the firmament!
Fields where the bondman's toil
No more shall trench the soil,
Seem now to bask in a serener day;
The meadow-birds sing sweeter, and the airs
Of heaven with more caressing softness play,
Welcoming man to liberty like theirs.
A glory clothes the land from sea to sea,
For the great land and all its coasts are free.

Within that land wert thou enthroned of late,
And they by whom the nation's laws were made,
And they who filled its judgment-seats obeyed
Thy mandate, rigid as the will of Fate.
Fierce men at thy right hand,
With gesture of command,
Gave forth the word that none might dare gainsay;
And grave and reverend ones, who loved thee not,
Shrank from thy presence, and in blank dismay
Choked down, unuttered, the rebellious thought;
While meaner cowards, mingling with thy train,
Proved from the book of God, thy right to reign.

Great as thou wert, and feared from shore to shore,
The wrath of God o'ertook thee in thy pride,
Thou sitt'st a ghastly shadow by thy side
Thy once strong arms hang nerveless evermore
And they who quailed but now
Before thy lowering brow,
Devote thy memory to scorn and shame,
And scoff at the pale powerless thing thou art
And they who ruled in thine imperial name,
Subdued and standing sullenly apart
Scowl at the hands that overthrew thy reign
And shattered at a blow the prisoner's chain

Well was thy doom deserved; thou didst not spare
Life's tenderest ties, but cruelly didst part
Husband and wife, and from the mother's heart
Didst wrest her children, deaf to shriek and prayer
Thy inner lair became
The haunt of guilty shame
Thy lash dropped blood; the murderer, at thy side,
Showed his red hands, nor feared the vengeance due
Thou didst sow earth with crimes and far and wide
A harvest of uncounted miseries grew,
Until the measure of thy sins at last
Was full, and then the avenging bolt was cast

Go then, accursed of God, and take thy place
With hateful memories of the elder time
With many a wasting pest, and nameless crime,
And bloody war that thinned the human race
With the Black Death, whose way
Through wailing cities lay,
Worship of Moloch, tyrannies that built
The Pyramids, and cruel creeds that taught
To avenge a fancied guilt by deeper guilt—
Death at the stake to those that held them not
Lo, the foul phantoms, silent in the gloom
Of the flown ages, part to yield thee room

I see the better years that hasten by,
Carry thee back into that shadowy past
Where in the dusty spaces, void and vast,
The graves of those whom thou hast murdered lie
The slave-pen through whose door
Thy victims pass no more,
Is there, and there shall the grim block remain
At which the slave was sold, while at thy feet
Scourges and engines of restraint and pain
Moulder and rust by thine eternal seat
There, mid the symbols that proclaim thy crimes
Dwell thou, a warning to the coming times

Amusing Sketch

MRS BULLWINKLE

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

Ladies and gentlemen. Give me five minutes sympathy and attention. I have something serious to say to you

I am a married man with an income which is too miserably limited to be worth mentioning. About a month since, my wife advanced me one step nearer to the Court for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, by presenting me with another child. On five previous occasions her name had appeared in the List of British Mothers which adorns the daily Supplement of the Times newspaper. At each of these trying periods (I speak entirely of myself when I use the word "trying") she was attended by the same Monthly Nurse. On this last, and sixth occasion, we are not so fortunate as to secure the services of our regular functionary. She was already engaged, and a new nurse with excellent recommendations, was, therefore, employed in her stead. When I first heard of her, and was told that her name was Mrs. Bullwinkle, I laughed. It was then the beginning of the month. It is now the end of it, and I write down that once comical name with a settled gravity which nothing can disturb

We all know Mrs. Gamp. My late Monthly Nurse is the exact antipodes of her. Mrs Bullwinkle is tall and dignified; her complexion is fair; her Grecian nose is innocent of all convivial coloring, her figure is not more than agreeably plump, her manners are icily composed, her dress is quiet and neat, her age cannot be more than five and thirty, her style of conversation, when she talks, is flowing and grammatical—up on the whole, she appears to be a woman who is much too ladylike for her station in life. When I first met Mrs. Bullwinkle on the stairs, I felt inclined to apologize for my wife's presumption in engaging her services. Though I checked this absurd impulse, I could not resist answering the new nurse's magnificent courtesy by expressing a polite hope that she would find her situation everything that she could wish under my roof

"I am not accustomed to exact much, sir," said Mrs Bullwinkle "The cook seems, I am rejoiced to say, to be an intelligent and attentive person. I have been giving her some little hints on the subject of my meals. I have ventured to tell her that I eat little and often, and I think she thoroughly understands me"

I am ashamed to say I am not so sharp as the cook. I did not thoroughly understand Mrs. Bullwinkle, until it became my duty, through my wife's inability to manage our domestic business, to settle the weekly bills. I then became sensible of an alarming increase in our household expenditure. If I had given two dinner parties in the course of the week, the bills could not have been more exorbitant, the butcher, the baker, and the grocer could not have taken me at a heavier pecuniary disadvantage. My heart sank as I thought of my miserable income. I looked up piteously from the bills to the cook for an explanation

The cook looked back at me compassionately, shook her head and said

"Mrs Bullwinkle"

I reckoned up additional steaks, fillets, kidneys, gravy, beef. I told off a terrible supplement to the usual family consumption of bread, flour, tea, sugar, and alcoholic liquids. I appealed to the cook again, and again the cook shook her head, and said,

"Mrs Bullwinkle"

My miserable income obliges me to look after sixpences, as other men look after five pound notes. Ruin sat immovable on the pile of weekly bills, and stared me sternly in the face. I went up into my wife's room. The new nurse was not there. The unhappy partner of my pecuniary embarrassments was reading a novel. My innocent infant was smiling in its sleep. I had taken the bills with me. Ruin followed them up stairs and sat spectral on one side of the bed, while I sat on the other.

"Don't be alarmed, love," I said, "if you hear the police in the house. Mrs. Bullwinkle has a large family, and feeds them all out of our provisions. A search shall be instituted, and slumbering Justice shall be aroused. Look at these joints, these chops, these steaks, these fillets, these gravy beefs!"

My wife shook her head, exactly as the cook had shaken hers, and answered precisely as the cook had answered "Mrs Bullwinkle"

"But where does she hide it all?" I exclaimed. My wife shut her eyes, and shuddered

"John!" said she, "I have privately consulted the doctor, and the doctor says Mrs Bullwinkle is a cow"

"If the doctor had to pay these bills," I retorted savagely, "he would not be quite so free with his jokes"

"He is in earnest dear. He explained to me, what I never knew before that a cow was an animal with many stomachs—"

"What!" I cried out in amazement, "do you mean to tell me that all those joints, these chops, these steaks, these fillets, these kidneys, these gravy beefs—these loaves, muffins, those mixed biscuits, those teas, these sugars, these brandies, gins, sherries, and beers, have disappeared in one week down Mrs Bullwinkle's throat?"

"All John," said my wife, sinking back on the pillow with a groan

It was impossible to look at the bills and believe it. I questioned and cross questioned my wife, and still elicited nothing but one bewildering answer. "All John!" Determined for I am a man of a logical and a judicial mind to have this extraordinary and alarming case properly investigated I took out my pocket book and pencil and asked my wife if she felt strong enough to make a few private entries for my satisfaction. Finding that she willingly accepted the responsibility I directed her to take down, from her own personal investigation, a statement of Mrs Bullwinkle's meals and of the time at which she partook of each of them for twenty four hours, beginning with one morning and ending with another. After making this arrangement, I descended to the parlor, and took the necessary measures for using the cook as a lock-up on her mistress. Having carefully instructed her to enter in the kitchen slate every thing that was sent up to Mrs Bullwinkle, for twenty four hours, I felt that my machinery for investigating the truth was complete. If the statement of the mistress on the second floor agreed with the statement of the cook, in the lowest place of the kitchen, there would be no doubt that I had obtained a perfectly correct statement of the mysterious subject of Mrs Bullwinkle's meals

In due time the two reports were sent in and I had the opportunity of understanding at last what "eating little and often" really meant in the case of my wife's monthly nurse. I except one particular (to be hereafter adverted to) both statements agree exactly. Here is the list accompanied by a correct time table of Mrs Bullwinkle's meals, beginning with the morning of Monday, and ending with the morning of Tuesday. I certify on my word of honor, as a British husband and housekeeper, that the copy is correctly taken from my wife's entries in my pocket book, checked impartially by the cook's slate

A. M.
7 Breakfast — Tea, Toast, Half quartern Loaf, Eggs Bacon
8 30 First Morning Snack — A glass of pale Sherry and a plate of mixed Biscuits
11. Second Morning Snack — A Basin of Beef Tea and a tumbler of Brandy and Water

P. M.
3 Afternoon Snack — A Glass of pale Sherry, and a plate of Mixed Biscuits
4 30 Tea and Muffins
7 Evening Snack — Stewed Cheese, toast and a Tumbler of Brandy and Water
9. Supper — Nice Juicy Steak and two glasses of Beer. Second Course — Stewed Cheese, and a Tumbler of Gin and Water

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS — (They are not vouched for by the cook's slate.) During the night of Monday Mrs Bullwinkle partook at intervals of Caudle. At 4 30 A. M., on the morning of Tuesday my wife was awakened by hearing the nurse walking up and down the room, sighing bitterly. The following conversation then took place between them

My Wife. Are you ill?
Mrs Bullwinkle. No. Hungry

I can certify that the above list correctly and even moderately represents Mrs Bullwinkle's daily bill of fare for one month. I can assert from my own observation, that every dish at every hour of the day which went up to her full, invariably came down empty

Mrs Bullwinkle was not a wasteful eater. She could fully appreciate, in roast meat, for example, the great value of "lean," but she was not on that account insensible to the humbler merits of fat, skin, and "outside." All—emphatically all—was fish that came to her net, and the net itself as I can personally testify, was never once overweighted and never out of order. I have watched, in the case of this perfectly unparalleled human cormorant, for symptoms of apoplexy, or at least of visible repletion, with a dreadful absorbing interest, and have, on no occasion, been rewarded by making the smallest discovery

Mrs. Bullwinkle was never, while in my service even so much as partially intoxicated. Her face was never flushed, her articulation was never thickened, her brain was never confused, her movements were never uncertain. After the breakfast, the morning snacks, and the dinner—all occurring within the space of six hours—she could move about the room with unimpeded freedom of action, could keep my wife and baby in a state of the strictest discipline, could courtesy magnificently, when the unoffending master, whom she was eating out of house and home, entered the room, preserving her equilibrium, and her staylaces, when she sank down and when she swelled up again, without the vestige of an apparent effort. During the month of her devastating residence under my roof, she had two hundred and forty eight meals including the snacks, and she went out of the house no larger and no redder than when she came in. After the statement of one such fact as that, further comment is superfluous

I leave the case in the hands of the medical and married public. I present it, as a problem, to physiological science. I offer it as a warning to British husbands with limited incomes. While I write these lines, while I give my married countrymen this friendly caution, my wife is weeping over the tradesmen's bills, my children are on one half allowance of food, my cook is worked off her legs, my purse is empty. Young husbands and persons about to marry, commit to memory the description here given of my late monthly nurse! Avoid a tall and dignified woman, with a flowing style of conversation and impressively lady like manners! Beware, my struggling friends, my fellow toilers along the heavily taxed highways of domestic happiness—beware of Mrs Bullwinkle

"THIS RADICAL CONGRESS."—Hon Hamilton Ward lately made a speech in Maryland, in which he said

Who are against this radical Congress? Jeff Davis is against it. Robert E. Lee is against it. Alexander H Stephens is against it. Harry Gilmore is against it. The same men that burned down your dwellings at night, and made war hideous along your border, are against it. The sneaking, hissing Northern Copperhead is against it. [Laughter and applause] I say to you who is for it? Every mother that has lost a son, every wife that has given her husband; every one who visits the sacred graves that are sprinkled all over the land, in tears and sorrow, every lover of his country, North and South, is in favor of it.

We have a small supply of the different sizes, from 10 inches to 48 inches in diameter. That we may know the proper sized wheel you require measure your water in the following way. Take the width of the stream, the average depth, and the distance it flows in a minute.

All the wheels now in use give universal satisfaction. Both the construction of the wheel and its performance, commend it to the better judgment of all minds capable of appreciating the highest development of mechanical construction. Therefore it has conquered the most violent opposition.

This wheel is especially adapted to mining purposes. It is light, and can be easily packed into the mountains. Wheels weighing from 100 to 300 pounds will yield from 10 to 40 horse power, under a head of 25 or 30 feet. They are the cheapest wheel to set up known, as they are so arranged as to produce the greatest power possible from the water used.

The prices of these wheels have now been reduced to the ability of all. Come and see them or send for a circular to

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus. CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time
